

I find the content of this docket objectionable as it fosters "animal activists" agenda to eliminate shipment of companion animals (among other agendas). Investigation of all incidents should be confidential and at the request of the owner (not 'guardian'). I have never had an incident while shipping or air travel. The airline industry already makes companion travel too difficult. We pay full fares for our animals yet they don't even receive a seat...and are less objectionable than many small children that travel who do get a seat.
